

Our Natural Inheritance, Where History Is Your Host

A Millennium of Environmental Legacy and 200 Years of Cultural Heritage in the Eastern Himalaya

Getaway to the Capital of Assam – "Wildlife & Indigenous Community Culture"

OUR STORY

A living testament to a millennium of environmental heritage and 150 years of cherished cultural legacy, Wild Mahseer stands as a seamless blend of nature's wonders and history's grace.

Named after one of the world's toughest game fish, Wild Mahseer offers an experience in mindful tourism within the lush, biodiverse haven of the Eastern Himalayan Botanic Ark. Spread across 22 acres of certified organic land, the property features the Burra Bungalow, five charming tea bungalows, a dining pavilion, conference facility, and the inviting spaces of Elephant Country and Apple.

Home to over 100,000 plants, 90+ bird species, and 72+ butterfly species, Wild Mahseer serves as a serene gateway to the Kaziranga 6th Addition, Pakke, Nameri, and Orang National Parks.

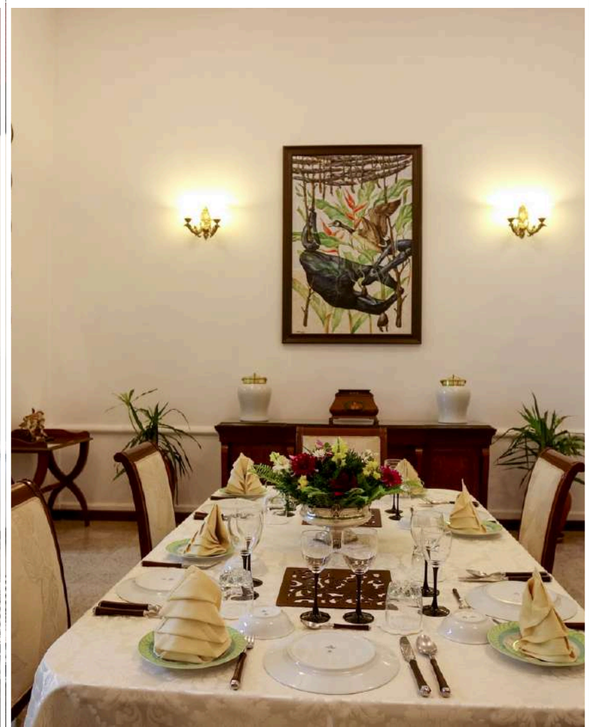

Beyond its natural splendor, Wild Mahseer thrives as a cultural mosaic, surrounded by eight ethnic communities from the Indo-Tibet and Indo-Myanmar regions, alongside the Tea Tribe communities whose roots trace back to migrations from Central Bengal over a century ago. Together, we form the living soul of this timeless retreat, where every breeze carries a story and every leaf whispers a legacy of harmony and heritage.

EXPERIENCE THE LUXURY OF THE COLONIAL LIFESTYLE

Burra Bungalow

The Burra Bungalow, a certified heritage property, stands steeped in over 150 years of history. Originally built in 1874 by the British Assam Tea Company as the Visiting Agent's Bungalow, it continues to echo the timeless tales of Assam's tea heritage.

At Wild Mahseer, this living monument gracefully bridges the past and the present, preserving the culture, dignity, and enduring spirit of the tea tribes while celebrating the legacy that still breathes through its walls.

Picture stepping into a time capsule that gently carries you to a bygone era—where laughter, conversations, and echoes of celebrations have etched themselves into every corner. It invites you to immerse yourself in the captivating narrative of our past and present—a haven where the whispers of history resonate in harmony with the rhythms of today.

EXPERIENCE THE LUXURY OF THE COLONIAL LIFESTYLE

Ambrosia was constructed in 1959 to house the then-chief accountant. This 4,500 square feet bungalow has been completely renovated and refurbished in the year 2019.

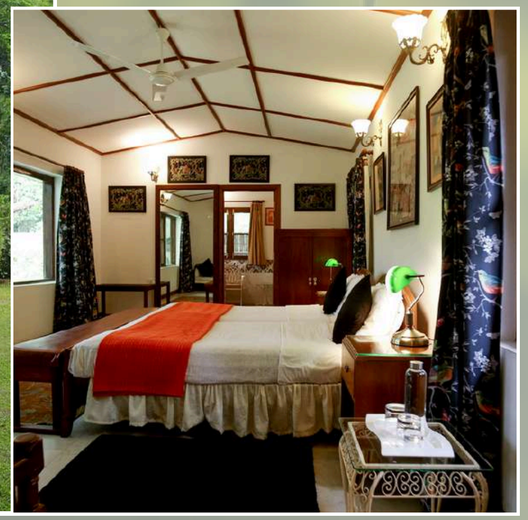

Camellia Bungalow was the visiting agent's office block comprising office rooms for Doctor Sahib, the company accountant, and their clerical staff, and a separate meeting room. These 4 office rooms have been turned into 4 luxurious bedrooms. The bungalow has been in existence since 1924.

EXPERIENCE THE LUXURY OF THE COLONIAL LIFESTYLE

Golden Tips, built in the 1920s as the Group Engineer's bungalow, is a heritage estate spread across 3,200 square meters. Renovated in 2004 and again in 2017, it beautifully blends colonial charm with modern elegance. A long driveway, flanked by manicured gardens and a lush bamboo hedge, leads you into this serene and storied retreat.

Silver Tips is a 3-bedroom bungalow set in a 1,200+ square meter compound. Formerly known as Charduar Lodge, this guest house was once Doctor Sahib's Bungalow constructed in the late 90s. It has been renovated twice in 2004 and 2015.

FIRST FLUSH – THE FLAVOURS OF BRITISH ASSAM

Once a humble tractor garage, First Flush has been gracefully reimagined into a world-class dining pavilion, now seating 28 guests in timeless elegance. Framed by classic French doors with glass panels, the space is bathed in natural light, creating a warm, inviting ambiance that evolves with the day.

When the monsoon arrives, the mood deepens — the scent of fresh rain mingles with aromas from the kitchen, while cool droplets tap gently outside, embraced by a lush green canopy. It becomes a soulful celebration of earth, air, and flavour — a sensory symphony.

Step outside, and you'll find outdoor spaces curated for magical gatherings. Autumn bonfires crackle, barbecues sizzle, and laughter lingers in the air. With cozy seating for over 20 guests, it's a space for slow, meaningful moments.

At First Flush, dining is more than a meal — it's a graceful journey through the delicate, layered flavours of British Assam.

FROM BARRACKS TO BOARDROOMS:

EXPERIENCE THE ART OF CONFERENCING IN THE LAP OF MOTHER NATURE

Nestled in the heart of the Eastern Himalayas, the Eastern Himalayan Botanic Ark offers a unique conference experience that blends modern amenities with the serene beauty of nature.

The Two & A Bud Conference Hall, once used as police barracks, now features two luxury halls seating 30 and 8 guests respectively.

Fully equipped with LCD projectors, audio systems, and variable lighting, the halls retain their old-world charm. Just steps away lies a Bambusetum with over 17 endemic bamboo species, some rare. Surrounded by lush greenery and birdsong, with panoramic views of the Himalayan foothills, it's a setting designed to inspire creativity and fresh thinking.

THE ESSENCE OF THE BRITISH ASSAM TEA COMPANY

A STORY THAT BEGAN IN 1839, FLOWING INTO VARIOUS CUPS ACROSS THE WORLD

In 1839, the British Assam Tea Company was founded, ushering in a new era that would place Assam on the global tea map. It was the first tea company in India, established by the British after they recognized that Assam's lush plains, nourished by the Brahmaputra River and monsoon rains, were perfect for cultivating tea. This marked the birth of India's commercial tea industry, a legacy that continues to thrive.

By the mid-19th century, Assam tea had captivated the world, becoming a staple in British high society and an essential part of English Breakfast Tea. The strong, malty flavor and deep amber hue of Assam's brew made it a favorite, setting it apart from teas grown elsewhere.

For over a century, Assam has worn a global crown, celebrated for producing some of the finest tea the world has ever known. This legacy is not just about tea; it is a story of resilience, of generations of tea planters and the unwavering dedication of the tea tribes—whose hands have woven history into every leaf, every infusion, and every aromatic cup.

At Wild Mahseer, the Burra Bungalow, established in 1874 by the British Assam Tea Company, continues to echo these timeless tales. A certified heritage building standing tall for over 150 years, it remains a living testament to Assam's rich tea legacy. Here, we embrace the spirit of the past with a modern twist—respectfully learning from and working with the tea tribes to preserve their dignity, culture, and the essence of Assam's tea heritage.
